

Let's go for a transformation

Wish you a happy new year

At the outset let us welcome year 2010. Here are my hopes for AJPCR. I planned to redesign online version with the online manuscript management system so that it is easier to use and more oriented towards the present situation.

On Theme 'Save paper save environment' we are also changing mode from print to online from this year. We regret to our institutional subscriber for not providing print version.

The first advisory editorial board, which made efforts to start the journal and to bring this level, now requires a change to give more strengthening. Nomination for new inclusion in the advisory editorial board is invited.

As Abhilasha Jain (Editor-in-Chief) is leaving, on behalf of the entire team of AJPCR we extend thanks to her for put on record her contribution to bring out the journal initially.

I am hopeful of getting more and more paper from the author in the subsequent issue and promise you better service in terms of providing quality publication.

Prof. Anurekha Jain
Editor-in-Chief